As companies of all sizes and industries look for meaningful ways to engage their employees, many have turned to the mentoring movement. Nationwide, employers and the corporate sector at large play a major role in ensuring that the younger generations are engaged citizens prepared for the 21st century workforce. Research shows that when companies support mentoring, not only do employees mentor more, but even those who do not mentor contribute to the movement by donating their resources or skills or voice.

MENTOR has also found that employees who work for a company that cares about mentoring are simply happier with their jobs and career and think highly of their employer’s decision to step up for youth in the community. This engagement builds a culture of mentoring in a company that can extend to the professional development employees receive and the values that are expressed every day in their workplace.

National Mentoring Month is a great time to invite companies in your community to join you in supporting young people. Here are some ways you can work with and recognize companies in your community:

1. Express your gratitude. Whether you post a thank you message on social media, record a thank you video, or send a handwritten note, your corporate partners will appreciate being recognized for their commitment to mentoring. If you choose to publicly express gratitude, double check any contract or written agreement you have with the company to be sure that there are no specific brand or recognition guidelines that would need to inform your approach to public recognition.

2. Provide sample content. Make it easy for companies to celebrate National Mentoring Month by sharing sample messages that they can post on their social media channels and intranet sites.

3. Spotlight mentoring stories. Work with companies to collect mentoring stories and photos from their employees and/or customers that they can promote through their communication channels. Further amplify these stories on your social media channels, website, and in newsletters and blog posts throughout the month.

4. Celebrate employee mentors. Plan an event to recognize the engagement and impact of employee volunteers. You can even invite mentees, supervisors, and direct reports to present awards and share what they value most in their mentoring relationships.

5. Create a picture book. Assemble a book of pictures and quotes from mentors and mentees in your program and present the books to corporate partners to display in their lobbies and waiting rooms. Personalize the book with a handwritten thank you message inside the front cover.

6. Host an open house. Recruit new corporate partners by inviting them to an open house where they can meet mentors and mentees in your program. Facilitate a few mentoring activities so prospective partners can see and experience mentoring in action. This can also be adjusted to a virtual event!
7. Facilitate an info session. Host a brown bag lunch or happy hour with prospective employee mentors to raise their awareness of your local mentoring gap and opportunities to connect with youth.

8. Issue a challenge grant. Work with a corporation to offer a challenge grant during National Mentoring Month to inspire others to engage in your efforts (e.g. $1 for every post that tags your program or a 1:1 match for every dollar raised during January up to a certain amount).

9. Recognize companies at the national level. Invite companies in your community who support mentoring to register for the National Corporate Mentoring Honor Roll. Launched in 2011 by First Lady Michelle Obama, the Honor Roll promotes and recognizes private-sector engagement and support of quality youth mentoring.

10. Partner with a company on a cause marketing campaign. Ask local businesses to donate a portion of their proceeds to your organization in honor of National Mentoring Month.

11. Partner with HR offices to encourage employee engagement with mentoring materials that may increase interest in mentoring or increase a mentoring-mindset in their workplace. Some key open-source resources available for companies to share with employees (through email blasts, intranets, etc) include:

    - Recorded Town Hall: Black Youth Town Hall
      A youth-led community dialogue aimed at supporting young people as they process major events in 2020 and the state of race relations in America.

    - Recorded Webinar: Increasing Youth-Voice in the Workplace: A Youth-Led Discussion
      In this webinar, youth job seekers and young people in entry level positions share how mentoring has or can shape their professional experiences. This session provides listeners with suggestions on how to provide better support to new employees and young adults in the workplace.

    - Recorded Event: Equity in Philanthropy, Amplify Youth Engagement
      Check out this webinar series to hear from funders working to center youth, especially BIPOC youth. Learn how some corporations and foundations have integrated youth leadership to improve their grantmaking and partnership management practices.

    - Webinar: Corporate Social Responsibility Mentoring Showcase
      In this webinar, corporate leaders share how they have examined, enhanced, or adjusted their CSR strategies to support youth in this time and what challenges they are still facing.

    - Webinar: Fresh Perspectives: Hiring and Retaining Opportunity Youth
      This webinar explores why companies should hire Opportunity Youth and shares proven strategies to support and retain these employees.

    - The Business Case for Mentoring
      This report by EY and MENTOR examines how top US businesses collaborate with the public and non-profit sectors to connect youth in their communities to transformative mentoring relationships. The report also offers best practices for businesses looking to start or enhance a mentoring effort and looks at the value that those opportunities bring to the business and its employees.

    - Fueling a Relationship Movement - the Critical Role that Employers Play in Growing and Supporting Youth Mentoring in America
      This report outlines the impact of employer engagement in mentoring on employee job satisfaction and employee participation in mentoring relationships.

    - Connect | Focus | Grow
      is a training curriculum that employs a three-pronged approach - to equip mentors with skills to effectively support the personal and professional growth of young people, to coach supervisors on how to manage with a mentoring mindset, and to guide young people towards engaging and leveraging mentoring opportunities while meeting their goals.